PRESS:

Germany to France: A Good puppet is made not born. Are you the man for the job? You must have strings of steel to qualify.

Kieth Sherwood to Europes of 1979 AA and 1980 AB: I want to thank everyone for my enjoyable stay here at Hoof and Mouth. Just wait til we get in a game when I have a real country. Then we'll see if this dog has his day... until then, may all of your fleets sink and your armies contract social diseases.

The deadline has been extended by ten days because Don Horton is changing his deadline and as a guest GM I must follow him. Until further notice all deadlines will be on the 17th instead of the 7th. As you guys may or may not know, Mr. Horton is winding down Claw and Fang. I guess the last issue will be in March. So we must all address ourselves to the question of life after Claw and Fang. We have two options: 1) We can continue what we're doing now - I can mail the results to Don and he can mail them to you, or 2) I can mail the results directly to you. Please let me know which method you prefer.

My thoughts: I prefer option number 2. First of all it would be better for the games as ~~xx~~ the results could be gotten to you all a bit faster. Secondly, this option could be a launching point for turning Hoof and Mouth into a full-fledged zine. The idea of publishing my own zine intrigues me. There are many obstacles in the way, the biggest one being the fact that I have no access to a duplicating machine (unless I'm willing to pay 10¢ a copy). If that hurdle can be overcome there's still the big question: Am I up to being a publisher? My spare time is only slightly more abundant than my spare money. And my spare money barely keeps me supplied with stamps and typing paper. Luckily there are a couple of months to work on these problems. In the mean time I wish you guys ~~xxx~~ would tell me what you think of the whole idea.

While I've got your attention I have a question to ask the players of 1979 AA (and you too, Don): Does anyone have a record of this games moves since it started? I know nothing of this game before Autumn 1903. I don't know what moves were made, who the players were or who the GM was. I'd like to know these things so I can wrap this game up properly when the time comes.

I think that covers everything except: standbys!
